U.S. Opens Libya Attack Inquiry

Clinton says probe into ambassador's death 'will take time'

Washington

Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton is pledging a full and open inquiry into the attack on the U.S. Consulate in Benghazi, Libya, amid demands from Congress for speedy answers to questions about the security of the mission and concerns that the FBI investigation into the incident has been delayed.

An independent five-member board appointed by Clinton will begin this week looking at whether security at the consulate was adequate and whether proper procedures were followed before, during and immediately after the attack that killed Christopher Stevens, the U.S. ambassador to Libya, and three other Americans on Sept. 11.

Backstory

On Sept. 11, an angry mob — in part protesting a U.S.-made anti-Muslim video — attacked the U.S. Consulate in Benghazi, Libya, storming the compound and setting it ablaze, above. U.S. Ambassador Christopher Stevens and three other State Department employees were killed in the attack. The Obama administration has withdrawn all official government personnel from Benghazi, U.S. officials said Monday. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

"The men and women who serve this country as diplomats deserve no less than a full and accurate accounting wherever that leads, and I am committed to seeking that for them," Clinton told reporters at the State Department on Wednesday.

Republican lawmakers claim security at the consulate was inadequate. Two House leaders have asserted that the Obama administration denied repeated requests from U.S. diplomats in Libya to enhance security at the mission, despite a string of less deadly terror attacks on the consulate in recent months. Those included an explosion that blew a hole in the security perimeter and another incident in which an explosive device was tossed over the consulate fence.

Republicans have questioned whether the Obama administration has been hiding key information or hasn't known what happened in the immediate aftermath of the attack. They are using those questions in the final weeks before the Nov. 6 election as an opportunity to assail President Barack Obama on foreign policy.

Clinton stressed that the investigation "will take time." Previous inquiries into attacks on diplomatic missions have taken months to complete.

But faced with impatient Republicans in Congress, Clinton pledged that the State Department would share appropriate information with lawmakers as soon as possible. MATTHEW LEE (AP)

Rare Meningitis Outbreak Kills 4, Sickens 26

Nashville, Tenn.

An outbreak of a rare and deadly form of meningitis has now sickened 26 people in five states who received steroid injections, health officials said Wednesday. Four people have died.

Eighteen of the cases are in Tennessee, where a Nashville clinic received the largest shipment of the steroid suspected in the outbreak. The drug was made by a specialty pharmacy in Massachusetts that has since issued a recall.

Three cases have been reported in Virginia, two in Maryland, two in Florida and one in North Carolina. Two of the deaths were in Tennessee; Virginia and Maryland had one each, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said.

More new cases are almost certain to appear in the coming days, said Tennessee Department of Health Commissioner John Dreyzehner. Cases in that state began in July and five new cases were confirmed over the past 24 hours, he said Wednesday.

Backstory

The Food and Drug Administration on Wednesday identified the maker of the medication suspected in a meningitis outbreak as the New England Compounding Center. Last week, the specialty pharmacy in Framingham, Mass., issued a recall of three lots of the injectable steroid, which is used to treat back pain. Company officials could not be immediately reached for comment Wednesday afternoon. (AP)

"This is a serious illness, a serious disease," Marion Kainer of the Tennessee Health Department said Tuesday. "There is not a lot of experience treating it, but we're getting the best advice possible."

Investigators have been looking into at least three products used for the back injections that could have been tainted by the fungus that appears to be behind the illnesses. The primary suspicion, however, has fallen on the steroid medication, which is commonly used for back pain. (AP)

Mapping a Cure

Scientists have found a way to decode the DNA of sick newborns in just days instead of weeks, researchers in Kansas City, Mo., said Wednesday, meaning doctors may be able to start treatment earlier or avoid futile care. The process allows doctors to zero in on the most suspicious genetic mutations faster and moves once-costly and time-consuming gene-mapping closer to routine medical care. (AP)

Turkey Fires on Targets in Syria

Official: Move comes after shell kills 5 in cross-border attack

Istanbul

Turkish artillery fired on Syrian targets Wednesday after shelling from Syria struck a border village in Turkey, killing five civilians, sharply escalating tensions between the two neighbors and prompting NATO to convene an emergency meeting.

"Our armed forces at the border region responded to this atrocious attack with artillery fire on points in Syria that were detected with radar, in line with the rules of engagement," the Turkish government said in a statement from the prime minister's office.

Along the volatile border, a shell fired from inside Syria landed on a home in the Turkish village of Akcakale, killing five civilians, including some children, and wounding a dozen others, according to Turkish media.

The shelling appeared to come from forces loyal to Syrian Pres-

NATO's National Atlantic Council, which is composed of the national ambassadors, held an emergency meeting in Brussels on Wednesday night at Turkey's request to discuss the incident.

Turkey was likely to receive an expression of support from the alliance, though any imminent move by the NATO members to intervene militarily seems remote. NATO also held an emergency meeting when a Turkish jet was shot down by Syria in June, killing two pilots.

Italian Man Gives Up Protest Atop St. Peter's Basilica

Vatican City

An Italian man gave up his protest atop St. Peter's Basilica on Wednesday evening, after more than 24 hours perched on the 426-foot-high dome to demonstrate against government reforms.

Two firefighters helped pull Marcello De Finizio inside the basilica a full day after he had eluded Vatican security to scale the dome and unfurl a banner reading: "Help! Enough Monti!" — referring to President Mario Monti, the architect of Italy's economic reforms.

RICCARDO DE LUCA/AP

Marcello De Finizio protests from the dome of the basilica Wednesday.

De Finizio lost his restaurant in the city of Trieste in a 2008 fire and said he has been unable to get a loan to rebuild because of the changing norms.

He was taken directly to the Rome police station but told the Associated Press by cellphone that it was a "formality" and he did not expect to face any charges.

It was the second time in three months that De Finizio had scaled the dome. His previous protest at St. Peter's in July lasted only four hours, he said, and nothing came of it. (AP)

Iran Fights Rial's Plunge

Tehran cracks down on money exchanges amid currency crisis

Tehran, Iran

Police threatened merchants who closed their shops in Tehran's main bazaar and launched crack-downs on sidewalk money changers Wednesday as part of a push to halt the plunge of Iran's currency, which has shed more than a third its value in less than a week.

The measures underscore the serious concern by officials facing one of the most potentially destabilizing scenarios, which has been partly blamed on the fallout from Western sanctions over Tehran's nuclear program.

Public anger has mounted over a punishing combination of a falling currency and rising prices, which have put some staples such

Signs of Trouble

The rial's sharp decline in Iran is attributed to a combination of Western sanctions and government policies — such as fueling inflation by increasing the money supply while also holding down bank interest rates. That prompted many people to withdraw their rials to exchange for foreign currency over the past months. The currency's nose-dive has added to the burdens on Iran's economy as it struggles with tougher sanctions targeting its crucial oil exports and measures blocking it from key international banking networks. (AP) as chicken and lamb out of reach of many low-income Iranians.

The shrinking rial also has rekindled bitter political feuds between President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad and his rivals, who say the crisis has also been fed by misguided monetary policies.

Iran's currency hit a record low of 35,500 rials against the U.S. dollar Tuesday on the unofficial street trading rate, which is widely followed in Iran. It was about 24,000 to the dollar a week ago and close to 10,000 rials for $1 as recently as early 2011.

Exchange houses were closed Wednesday and currency web-sites were blocked from providing updates. Anti-riot police also patrolled the streets in central Tehran where freelance money dealers work. There were unconfirmed reports of arrests. (AP)

Truck Drivers Strike as Unrest Swells in S. Africa

FIREFIGHTERS EXTINGUISH A TRUCK on a highway outside of Cape Town, South Africa, on Wednesday. It was set aflame by striking truck drivers, who are demanding higher wages. Labor unrest is also affecting other industries in South Africa, as strikes have spread to several gold, platinum and chrome mines. Meanwhile, officials postponed South Africa's inquiry into violence that killed at least 34 platinum miners on strike in August to allow for lawyer consultations and travel.

Chief Lanier May Testify
In 2002 Park Protest Case

Lanier

D.C. Police Chief Cathy Lanier may be asked to testify in a lawsuit stemming from mass arrests of hundreds of protesters 10 years ago, according to a federal judge overseeing the case. U.S. Magistrate John Facciola said in a written order that he wants to hold a hearing, likely early next month, and that Lanier may be needed as a witness. The suit concerns the arrests of some 400 protesters who were corralled at a city park during 2002 protests of the International Monetary Fund/World Bank meeting. (AP)

Official Gets 18 Months
For Extortion, Bribery

A former Prince George's County fire department official who bribed public officials in exchange for acts that benefited a development in which he had a financial interest has been sentenced to a year and a half in prison. Karl Granzow pleaded guilty in March to extortion conspiracy and tax evasion. Federal prosecutors said he conspired with two developers to make illegal contributions to 10 political campaigns. He also admitted bribing public officials in exchange for acts that benefited a mixed-use development project near the Greenbelt Metro station. (AP)

LEESBURG, VA.

Loudoun Board Votes
To Investigate Delgaudio

Loudoun County's Board of Supervisors has voted unanimously to investigate allegations that Republican Supervisor Eugene Delgaudio misused county staff to raise political funds. An ex-staffer in Delgaudio's office filed a complaint with the county earlier this year, alleging she spent most of her time arranging fundraising meetings with potential donors. The complaint was referred to the commonwealth's attorney in Arlington, who did not recommend pursuing charges. (AP)

Gray Unveils Plan for Playoffs

Costs for extra police, staff may run $800K if Nats go all the way

Washington

The District will spend as much as $76,000 per Nationals playoff game to provide extra police officers, taxicab inspectors, traffic-control officers and other city employees at the stadium.

If the Nationals were to make it through the World Series, that could add up to about $836,000. But according to Mayor Vincent Gray, it's a small price to pay for the city's first baseball playoffs since 1933.

"The District will provide, as all major cities do in similar situations, additional security and traffic control around the stadium during the playoffs," said Gray, a Democrat, who outlined the city's plans at his biweekly news conference Wednesday. "This is an exciting time for the District, and we look forward to the national attention that the playoff games will bring."

Gray said that he has confidence in Police Chief Cathy Lanier to deploy officers responsibly.

Council member Jack Evans, D-Ward 2, chairman of the Committee on Finance and Revenue, estimated that each game could generate $500,000 in revenue, particularly through taxes on hotels and restaurants. "I'm waiting to get a final fiscal impact statement," he said.

— KRIS BAUMANN, CHAIRMAN OF THE FRATERNAL ORDER OF POLICE, SPEAKING ON THE DECISION TO MOVE POLICE OFFICERS FROM THEIR BEATS TO WORK PLAYOFF GAMES

Backstory

Technology firm LivingSocial stepped up to the plate last week and paid the $29,500 deposit that Metro requires to extend service for an extra hour. (Tim O'Shaughnessy, co-founder and CEO of LivingSocial, is a son-in-law of Washington Post Co. Chairman Donald E. Graham.)

Mayoral spokesman Pedro Ribeiro said the city would recoup the costs. "This is good for tourism," he said. "... This is good for the area around the ballpark. We're very confident. When it's all added up, the city's going to come out on top."

In addition to the police costs, more than $25,000 per game will go toward deploying about 60 employees from the District Department of Transportation, most of them traffic-control officers.

City administrator Allen Lew said the city is looking at "various ways to exit" and "traffic flow."

The city will also beef up its code enforcement ranks, adding eight hack inspectors and eight vending enforcement employees outside the stadium at a cost of about $5,000 per game.

Airports Authority Board to Grow

D.C. Council approves increase in seats for transportation body

Washington

The D.C. Council on Tuesday approved an expansion of the board of the regional transportation authority overseeing the construction of a $5.6 billion Silver Line rail extension.

Under the measure, the board of the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority will grow to 17 members from 13, with D.C. and Maryland each receiving an additional seat and Virginia getting two.

JONATHAN NEWTON/TWP

Barbara Lang, head of the D.C. Chamber of Commerce, will join MWAA's board.

New Faces

When the MWAA meets this month, the District's new representative, Barbara Lang, 68, will join three newcomers from Virginia: Caren Merrick, 52, of McLean (a replacement); Lynn Chapman, 51, of Ashburn; and Elaine McConnell, 85, of Springfield. Maryland officials have not yet named a new board member. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

The council also voted to approve Barbara Lang, the president and chief executive of the D.C. Chamber of Commerce, to fill the District's new seat on the board.

The bill represents a compromise among regional leaders. Rep. Frank Wolf, R-Va., who sponsored the legislation in Congress, originally sought to give all four seats — and thus majority control of the board — to Virginia. But leaders in the District and Maryland opposed that effort.

Congress and the Virginia General Assembly have passed bills to increase the size of the board, which is made up of appointees from the District, Maryland, Virginia and the federal government.

After Decline, Traffic Deaths Are Back Up

Washington

After six years of decline took traffic deaths to the lowest point in 60 years, they increased dramatically in the first half of 2012, federal data show.

Highway safety experts were at a loss to explain why, but most speculated that rebounding economic confidence may have put more people on the roads.

The number of roadway fatalities jumped 13.4 percent in the first three months of this year, and the total for April, May and June was 5.3 percent higher than in 2011.

Fans applaud as Teddy races to his first victory in the Presidents Race during the Nationals' game against the Phillies on Wednesday.

Score One For Teddy!

Mascot's win adds to the Nationals' list of historic successes

Washington

For the first time, the Teddy Roosevelt mascot won the Presidents Race in the middle of the fourth inning at Nationals Park — a pursuit that drew attention even from a White House spokesman and Sen. John McCain.

Teddy — the Rough Rider — had lost more than 500 times since 2006, when the Nationals began having races among 10-foot-tall foam renderings of Roosevelt, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Abe Lincoln at home games.

The crowd cheered wildly Wednesday when Teddy triumphed in the last game of the 2012 regular season, helped when a green mascot wearing a jersey of the Philadelphia Phillies — Washington's opponent — knocked down the other three presidents. "Relief, excitement," gushed Scott Ableman, who is behind the Let Teddy Win website.

The game's next batter, Washington third baseman Ryan Zimmerman, hit a homer leading off the bottom of the fourth for the home team's first run. The hitter after that, Michael Morse, doubled and eventually scored, too. Coincidence?

Teddy's triumph is the latest in a streak of unprecedented success for the Nationals. They clinched their first NL East title Monday and are bringing postseason Major League Baseball to the nation's capital for the first time since 1933.

"I think I said last year that it's going to be tough to win without Teddy winning," said Nats outfielder Jayson Werth. "I guess he was waiting for us."

We look back on the Nats' season and ahead to their playoff push in Friday's Express.

Racing Stats

Teddy

Total wins: 1

Best season: 2012 (1 win)

Memorable win: Wednesday!

George

Total wins: 162

Best season: 2007 (33 wins)

Memorable win: After his second-straight victory on July 10, 2010, George got a little cocky and did a LeBron-style powder clap into the air. Testy Teddy tackled him and ruined his moment.

Tom

Total wins: 161

Best season: 2011 (30 wins)

Memorable win: On May 6, 2010, Tom shot out of the gate but tired quickly, hands on knees. But wait! He pulled out an energy drink, popped the top, chugged it down and sprinted easily to the finish.

Abe

Total wins: 214

Best season: 2008 (49 wins)

Memorable win: The June 24, 2009, race began with video of Teddy somewhere, tossing tea crates for some reason. As rivals stood transfixed, Abe won easily and danced as staffers sprayed his feet with fire extinguishers.

LETTEDDYWIN.COM/TWP

One Win Isn't Enough for Teddy

Woo! He's 1-525! With an assist from a phake Phillie Phanatic, who clotheslined the three other commanders in chief, Teddy Roosevelt broke his Susan Lucci-esque losing streak and took his first Presidents Race on Wednesday at Nationals Park.

Now that we know victory is possible, here are some ways Teddy can keep the W's coming.

Sticking It to 'Em:

Violence is bad. Except when it's necessary. The Nats could honor the real Roosevelt's most famous quip and arm Teddy with a big stick with which to whack the other presidents. This could backfire and elicit sympathy for Teddy's rivals, but since they all have their faces on money and Teddy doesn't (OK, technically he appears on South Dakota's quarter as part of Mount Rushmore), we figure they'll get over it. And think of the marketing possibilities of a Teddy-approved stick and the souvenir proceeds it could rake in!

Riding High: Teddy has used a zip line, a rickshaw and a Segway in his failed attempts to win. Maybe he should stick to more era-appropriate transportation. Roosevelt was an avid horseman, building much of his fame on his cavalry charge up San Juan Hill during the Spanish-American War. Wouldn't it be majestic to have him come storming down the field, sword held aloft, atop a majestic mount? On the downside, there are some inevitable problems when you cross a galloping horse, a sword and a guy in a 10-foot costume.

Grin and Bear It: There are two ways this could go. One, a teddy bear shows up to help Teddy, distracting the other presidents with his adorable cuteness. Or two, someone borrows a bear from the National Zoo and the Nats become famous for the first on-field mauling. A goring by a bull moose would also work.

Nationals clinch top playoff seed with a victory in the season finale

The Nationals

The National League East champion Nationals secured home-field advantage throughout the post-season by beating the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 Wednesday for their majors-high 98th victory, with Ryan Zimmerman homering moments after the Teddy Roosevelt mascot won the Presidents Race at Nationals Park for the first time.

By winning their regular-season finale, the Nationals clinched top seeding for the NL playoffs and will open on the road Sunday at the winner of Friday's wild-card game between Atlanta and St. Louis. Game 2 will also be at the wild-card winner's stadium, before the best-of-five series shifts to Washington.

Before Wednesday's game, the Nationals were fitted for hats with postseason patches. A team from the nation's capital hasn't participated in Major League Baseball action beyond the regular season since the Senators lost the 1933 World Series.

All in all, it was a festive day for the announced crowd of 37,075 and the Nationals (98-64), a club that hadn't finished higher than third place since moving from Montreal in 2005 and twice lost 100 games in a season.

This is the first time the Expos/Nationals franchise has finished first in a complete season.

Philadelphia finished third in the division at 81-81, ending a streak of nine-straight winning

Michael Morse and Ryan Zimmerman celebrate after Zimmerman's homer in the fourth inning of the Nationals' win Wednesday.

Nationals fans start thinking ahead to the playoffs during Wednesday's matinee.

Nats Notes

Davey Johnson turned over the managerial duties to bench coach Randy Knorr late in Wednesday's game after nerve inflammation in Johnson's back caused numbness in his left leg. Johnson, the oldest skipper in the majors at 69 years old, said he was fine after the game and doesn't anticipate any problems traveling or managing during the playoffs.

Morse Feels Pain: Nats slugger Michael Morse felt spasms in his hamstring after Wednesday's game, Johnson said. Johnson wasn't sure if the problem was serious, and Morse said on Twitter that it isn't a big deal.

Moore's Blast: Rookie Tyler Moore's solo shot in the sixth inning made him the seventh member of the Nationals with at least 10 homers this season. (EXPRESS/AP) 1975 to 1983 — the Phillies followed that by going 81-81 in 1984. After the game, general manager Ruben Amaro Jr. announced that first base coach Sam Perlozzo was fired — and indicated more changes could come Thursday now that the season is complete.

Edwin Jackson (10-11) became Washington's fifth pitcher with at least 10 wins, giving up one run and six hits over 6 <sup>2</sup>/<sub>3</sub> innings.

He left to a standing ovation, one of several on a muggy afternoon with the temperature in the 70s.

Others feeling love from fans were Zimmerman and rookie Bryce Harper, who pinch ran for the third baseman in the eighth inning.

"At this point, it's fun facts for the organization," Jackson said about the team's win total. "But at this point, in the postseason, if you lose out, all that gets washed away." HOWARD FENDRICH (AP)

United Steps Up Without Captain

D.C. closing in on a playoff spot without injured De Rosario

Major League Soccer

It is still a bit premature for D.C. United to make a "Mission Accomplished!" proclamation, but the response to captain Dwayne De Rosario's season-ending injury has the club on the cusp of its first post-season berth since 2007.

Entering Saturday afternoon's tilt against Toronto FC, D.C. has secured 10 points in the four games since De Rosario went down with an MCL sprain.

"It's been a group response," United coach Ben Olsen said Wednesday. "Guys look out for each other on the field. We have to clean up some of the soccer stuff and be better on that side, but as far as being tough to break down and covering each other's backs, that part we've done a good job."

D.C. has conceded just two goals

United's Andy Najar controls the ball against the Philadelphia Union on Sept. 23.

United sits three points clear of sixth-place Columbus, which comes to RFK Stadium on Oct. 20. D.C. can maintain or extend that advantage (Columbus has a date with conference-leading Sporting Kansas City this weekend) with its third win of the season against lowly Toronto, which is last in the MLS standings with a 5-19-7 record. That last fact does not diminish the significance of the matchup.

"We have probably our most important game of the season coming up," Olsen said. "Hopefully we understand that and go about the business in the right way."

ESPN The Magazine went all out this week with a spread dedicated to the D.C. sports scene — mostly centered on the Nationals and Robert Griffin III. But there's hardly a mention of D.C. United, the only local team to win a championship in the past two decades.

The only references to the club in the spread are an illustration of former great Jaime Moreno in a boat filled with the city's sports icons and a sentence about Andy Najar. A.C.

Va. Tech Sets Sights on ACC Championship

Hokies Football

Virginia Tech coach Frank Beamer sounds the same refrain every year when the Hokies lose a game that knocks them out of the national championship picture: They still have the ACC championship to chase.

Schedule Set

The ACC has dropped a plan to play nine conference football games starting next season and revised its scheduling setup for basketball with the addition of Notre Dame. The league announced in February it would have a nine-game football schedule once Pittsburgh and Syracuse moved from the Big East to the ACC. But with Notre Dame now set to play five games against ACC teams every season, starting no later than 2015, the conference decided to stick with an eight-game schedule. (AP) the run-first offense to be brought into the 21st century and other panic-driven measures.

Most years, though, the Hokies are not only ACC title contenders, but also the favorites.

Not this year, even if the pre-season polls said they should be.

Virginia Tech (3-2, 1-0 Atlantic Coast Conference) has struggled offensively and defensively and lost twice to Big East teams. With a rigorous slate of ACC games the rest of the way, a sixth divisional title in eight years might be tough to get.

Virginia Tech plays at improving North Carolina (3-2, 0-1) on Saturday in Chapel Hill, N.C. It's the start of a gauntlet that eventually includes meetings with No. 3 Florida State, No. 15 Clemson and Miami.

"Well, the facts are this: We're one up in ACC play," Beamer said Tuesday, noting the Hokies' season-opening victory against Coastal Division rival Georgia Tech, then expected to be its top divisional challenger. "I guess a couple people are tied with us, but we're gonna end up playing them, so we control that part of it."

Stats & Strategy

As Election Day nears, let these guys be your guides. You'll be smarter for it.

Now that the presidential debates have begun, everybody's got an opinion about how this thing is going to turn out. Some have loud, kind of paranoid ones. Others have more rational and informed ones, including media wunderkinds Nate Silver and Sasha Issenberg — pros at crunching quantitative data, employing scientific methods and applying historical perspectives to analyze political races.

Their areas of expertise make them a bit of a wonk dream team: Issenberg examines how campaigns try to influence voters before elections, while Silver writes about how to predict the results.

Want to know whether Romney's or Obama's camp is doing a better job at mobilizing voters — actually getting them to register and turn out on polling day? Issenberg — Slate columnist and author of "The Victory Lab" ($26, Crown Publishers) — is your guy.

Need to know which polls to trust or which presidential candidate to pick for an Election Day wager? Turn to Silver, stats star behind the New York Times' FiveThirtyEight blog and author of "The Signal and the Noise" ($28, The Penguin Press). KATIE ABERBACH (EXPRESS)

Who's Winning?

As of our interviews with Silver and Issenberg on Sept. 20 and Sept. 24, respectively, both saw a greater potential for Barack Obama to win the presidential election than Mitt Romney. Read on for their insights.

On his wonk fan club:

"It's not too crazy. Every couple of months, I'll get interrupted when I'm eating a slice of pizza or something. But it's usually a 60-year-old dude."

Nate Silver

Nate Silver finds himself answering one question fairly often these days.

"People say, 'Would you place money on your election odds?'" says Silver, a statistician, writer and founder of the political blog FiveThirtyEight.com, which forecasts, among other things, the likelihood of victory for each of the two main presidential candidates. (The original site, which was picked up by the New York Times as a blog in 2010, first started with presidential predictions in 2008 and takes its name from the number of electors in the U.S. electoral college.)

"I probably do have a lot of money riding on" the outcome of Nov. 6, Silver says. He does, after all, stake his career on the reliability of his forecasts.

Silver gained attention around the 2008 elections, when he correctly predicted the presidential voting results in 49 of 50 states — missing Indiana, which ended up going for Barack Obama by 1 percent — and all of the Senate races. (Prior to that, Silver dealt primarily in sports odds and developed PECOTA, a system for forecasting baseball performance.)

As this year's election draws

"We estimate that if the election were held [Sept. 20], Obama would have about a 94 percent chance of winning," Silver says. "But, hey, that 6 percent is going to come up often enough."

closer, Silver realizes a lot of eyes are again on him. The Times slot has given FiveThirtyEight a much wider audience, and he's become a nerd-chic hero in political circles. He's also just published his first book, "The Signal and the Noise," about the science of predictions — what makes some forecasts succeed and others fail.

Silver formulates forecasts for FiveThirtyEight by compiling polls, weighing their data and running the numbers through complex calculations. Because so many polls are factored in, "our predictions tend to be relatively stable" from day to day, Silver says. Still, it's possible that an October surprise could skew the numbers dramatically for the candidates, and by that point, he says, it could be too late for the loser to catch up.

That element of chance is what keeps Silver from feeling overly confident in his forecasts — a good thing, in his eyes, since he says those who are too confident in their predictions are the ones you should trust the least.

And, as Silver would know better than most, "people tend to make better predictions when they have financial incentives to get them right."

On voter behavior and campaigns:

"Almost all innovation I write about has taken place since 2000. Some things people would have laughed at in the '90s. Then, Florida got decided by 500 votes, and nobody's laughing anymore."

Sasha Issenberg

At one point in Sasha Issenberg's new book, "The Victory Lab," 2008 Obama campaign consultant Ken Strasma says something unsettling: "We knew who ... people were going to vote for before they decided."

Sci-fi as this sounds, it may actually be true, thanks to a sophisticated algorithm that predicted individuals' views based on weekly polling calls to thousands of voters in the months before elections, among other data. There's nothing illegal or unethical about it, but "there are all sorts of reasons why this stuff can sound creepy," Issenberg says.

"I am not a number! I am a free man!" you may be saying. Well, even if you don't want political campaigns making assumptions about you and your ballot, there's not much you can do about it.

"If you vote, or if you're registered to vote, your voter registration information is public," Issenberg says. "And that already is the basis for campaigns' starting to draw conclusions about you. And they will draw conclusions about you."

Ick factor aside, the "secret science" of how campaign strategists have worked to win

"I've been doing reporting for Slate this year about the Obama campaign, and I'm incredibly impressed with [the campaign's] empirical sophistication. ... Right now, I'd bet on the Obama campaign."

votes over the past decade is important and interesting — and it hasn't gotten much notice in the mainstream media, Issenberg believes. (Which is what spurred him to write "The Victory Lab" in the first place.)

Rather than trying to turn out supporters by "brute force" using ads, as campaigns traditionally did, strategists are shifting to subtler forms of persuasion. They're "microtargeting" smaller pockets of desired voters, whose behavior they believe they can influence: Individuals who seem likely to sympathize with the candidate but unlikely to actually make it out on Election Day are the focus of voter registration drives; individuals who appear undecided or likely to shift allegiances are solicited with personalized, persuasive direct mailings or calls.

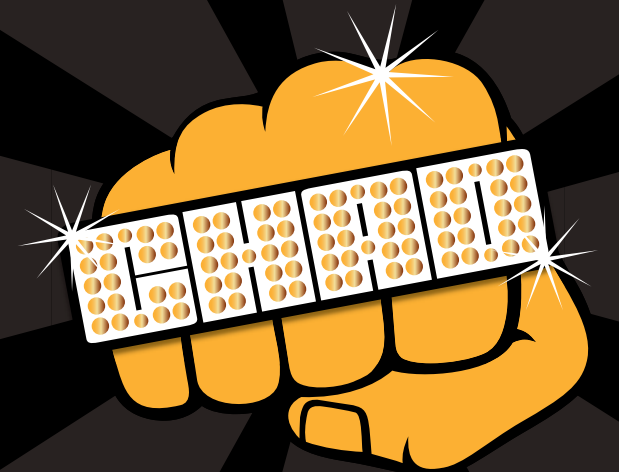

"Campaigns are a lot less focusing on changing people's minds than they are on changing their behavior," Issenberg says.

So, you can be sure someone out there will be pleased if you make it to the polls. That is, of course, if they didn't already know you were going to go before even you did.

Jon Spencer

BLUES EXPLOSION MAN

It's been eight years since the Jon Spencer Blues Explosion — former D.C. resident Jon Spencer, guitarist Judah Bauer and drummer Russell Simins — released its last album of skuzzy, R&B-drenched rock 'n' roll. New disc "Meat + Bone" proves the long-running New York trio are as combustible as ever.

The three of you recorded "Meat + Bone" live in the studio. What makes that important to the process?

Partly it's because we believe in an older method of record production, and partly it's because we believe that what's important about the Blues Explosion is the collaboration. It's the three of us colliding in a musical way.

You never seemed to get your due, critically or commercially, when you were starting out in the 1990s. Do you feel listeners today are more accepting of the Blues Explosion?

Perhaps. When we were starting out, people got really hung up on classifications and genres. That still happens, but I think most people are adventurous in exploring different things.

Is playing D.C. like a hometown show for you?

In some ways, yeah. That's where I started my first band, Pussy Galore, back in '85 or '86. I met my wife there, and I saw some great shows there. That's where — for lack of a better word — my career started. So it's always good to play D.C. STEPHEN M. DEUSNER (FOR EXPRESS)

You Want to Dance

Perhaps in an effort to confine the fest's groove-enhancer intake to one sector of the grounds, FreeFest has corralled all the electronic acts (with the exception of headliner Skrillex) into the Dance Forest behind the pavilion lawn. Free your mind and get a full-body workout to DJs and EDM acts Above & Beyond, Porter Robinson & Zedd, Thomas Gold, Nervo, Alvin Risk and Penguin Prison.

How to Get Tickets:

If you didn't score tickets when they went "on-free," you're not shut out of FreeFest: You can still get tickets by checking the Virgin Mobile Live Facebook page and Twitter (@Virginmlive) for giveaways. Or, you can volunteer your time to help the homeless, as part of the FreeLP program, in exchange for a ticket. ## You Like Hip-Hop You're mostly out of luck. Outside of Das Racist, the only true rapper on the bill is Nas. We could consider Santigold a hip-hop act, but that would be offensive to Nas.

You're a Rocker

You have options. Want to turn back the clock? Try the soulful, retro sounds of one of this year's buzziest bands (and Jack White tour mates) Alabama Shakes. Feeling funky? There's the R&B-flavored rock of Allen Stone or the neo-hippie vibes of Portugal. The Man. And if you just want to chill, check out the delicate harmonies of Trampled by Turtles and the acoustic folk of 9:30 Club Records recording artist Justin Jones.

You're Old

You probably won't want to be at Virgin Fest. Yet every year, festival organizers throw an act or two on the bill to appease the elders (Patti Smith and Joan Jett, for example). This year, the honor goes to Texas bearded ZZ Top, who recently released the career-revitalizing, Rick Rubin-produced "La Futura."

A.M. Homes peers into the darkness of the 'burbs with a new novel

Books

A.M. Homes' writing — fiction and non — is daring and dangerous: Like Raymond Carver (the early '80s king of irredeemable characters), Homes, 50, brings readers inside the hearts of the off-putting, sometimes criminal personalities that populate her stories. The suburban-D.C. native's latest novel, "May We Be Forgiven," follows two wealthy, middle-aged brothers through a familial rough patch: After George accidentally kills a family with his car, younger bro Harry steps in to help out at home — and beds George's wife. It's not Homes' first time scratching suburbia's surface to reveal the soft decay beneath, as a selection of her work reveals:

HELAINE SEDMAN

A.M. Homes' new novel is, again, dark.

'Jack': Homes' debut novel, written when she was 19, focused on a teen coming to terms with his parents' divorce and his father's homosexuality. Jack is "an engaging, attractive human being," as David Foster Wallace described him when the book was published in 1989. Later characters, not so much.

'The Safety of Objects':

Homes' 1990 short-story collection went darker. For instance, in "Adults Alone," the book's oddly touching standout piece, two middle-class parents spend a kid-free weekend trying to reconnect with each other by doing a bunch of crack.

'The End of Alice':

This 1996 novel — told from the point of view of Chappy, a child killer corresponding from prison with a 19-year-old girl — freaked people out. Homes published a companion volume, "Appendix A: An Elaboration on the Novel 'The End of Alice,'" to explain Chappy's motivations.

'The L Word': Homes, who is bisexual, wrote for seasons 2 and 3 of the Showtime series. She kindly helped send brooding writer Jenny Schecter and her gender-transitioning partner, Moira, on a nerve-racking cross-country tour of terrifying rednecks and small-town gay bars.

'The Mistress's Daughter':

Homes, who was adopted, chronicled reconnecting with her birth parents in this 2007 memoir. Things didn't go perfectly (with her mentally ill mother, especially), yet this turned out to be one of Homes' most accessible books.

Lucky Plush smashes modern dance's heady reputation with dialogue, plot and pop-culture nods

Stage

Modern dance gets a bad rap for being abstract and obscure, and that's the first thing that sets contemporary dance company Lucky Plush apart from the pack. The Chicago-based ensemble is known for thoughtful and challenging works that nonetheless manage to include the audience along the way.

The company's newest performance, "The Better Half," goes several steps further in deviating from typical modern-dance conventions. Loosely based on the 1944 noir film "Gaslight," the show includes dialogue, pop references and even something resembling a plot — elements virtually unheard of in most modern-dance pieces.

This was an intentional effort, says founder and artistic director Julia

It's definitely modern dance, but Lucky Plush creates performances that let the audience in.

"While there are definite thematic arcs and through-lines in my work, it's not usually this narrative."

— JULIA RHOADS, FOUNDER AND ARTISTIC DIRECTOR OF LUCKY PLUSH DANCE COMPANY

Rhoads. For this performance, she collaborated with Leslie Buxbaum Danzig, a Chicago-based theater director, a union that opened up a plethora of possibilities.

"I think one reason Leslie and I are drawn to working together is that we're both interested in being accessible to audiences," Rhoads says. "But while there are definite thematic arcs and through-lines in my work, it's not usually this narrative."

Rhoads says that she and Danzig started out thinking they might make a dance-theater piece about "Anna Karenina," but ultimately found they were more interested in a broader theme: the idea of someone trapped in a role they'd like to shed. That led to "Gaslight," the tale of a woman whose mendacious husband tries to convince her she's crazy. Instead of a pure rehash of that story, though, this show is a meditation on the essence of identity.

"The performance starts with five main characters who are handed their character names [while onstage] and grow into their roles," Rhoads says. "But at a certain point, they grow dissatisfied with those roles." From there, the piece opens up to other storylines and scripts, including "The Bourne Identity" and Ingmar Bergman's "Scenes from a Marriage."

If the performance sounds like it could go off the rails or become hard to follow, fret not. Rhoads assures that the piece coheres to one basic theme that isn't obscured by dialogue or humor.

"It's ultimately following a central marriage," she says. "The ultimate takeaway is the resiliency of people in relationship to each other."

And that's something understandable by any audience. AMANDA ABRAMS (FOR EXPRESS)

Congressional Cemetery

YEAH, WE'RE DEAD, BUT WE HAVE A GOOD ATTITUDE ABOUT IT

This is neither a scary place nor a sad one. Dogs frolic. Sun shines. All tour options — self-guided, cellphone and docent-led — introduce death-defying personalities: madam Mary Hall, Declaration of Independence-signer Elbridge Gerry, Civil War photographer Mathew Brady, a random woman who wanted her tomb to look like a china cabinet, etc.

The blocky sandstone memorials with the pointed tops were designed by Benjamin Henry Latrobe to honor congressmen who died in office. Though they are referred to as cenotaphs — the word means empty tomb — about 80 of the 165 mark actual graves.

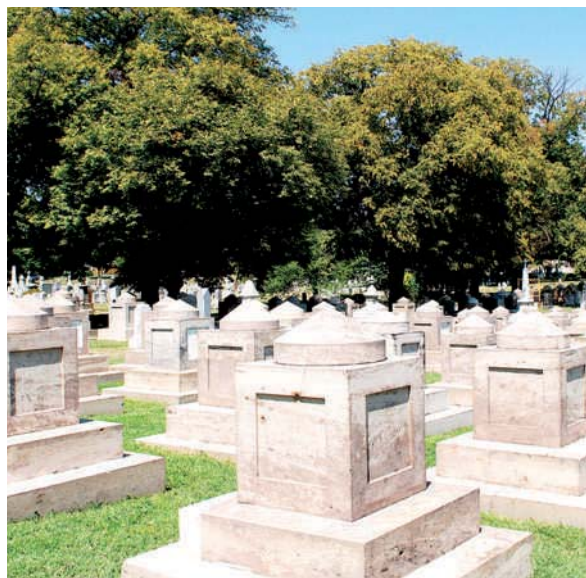

Many powerful women are interred here; obtain the self-guided tour brochures "Educators, Agitators & Lawyers" and "Women of Arts and Letters."

"March King" John Philip Sousa's tomb incorporates a cozy bench, making for cute family photos.

A few headstones await living persons who reserved their spots in style. One such marker is a stone rendition of a Library of Congress catalog card. The call number is that of the future occupant's book, a guide to conducting library research.

Did You Know?

» Colonial symbolism — winged skulls, death's heads — was out of style by 1807, when the cemetery was founded. Expect hourglasses with wings (meaning "time flies"), broken pillars, contemplative angels, decorative urns and many obelisks.

» Several gay-rights activists are buried near Vietnam vet Leonard Matlovich, who fought against the military's ban on gays. His epitaph: "When I was in the military they gave me a medal for killing two men and a discharge for loving one."

» The practice of regularly honoring deceased congressmen with cenotaphs ended in 1876, when Rep. George Frisbie Hoar turned his fellows against an appropriation to build more, saying they added "new terrors to death."

Indie-drama director Joe Swanberg takes a stab at horror for the anthology 'V/H/S'

Screen

Horror films make for especially animated audiences. Moviegoers laugh nervously, cower in their seats, cover their eyes and even talk back to the screen.

This is the biggest difference between horror and drama, says

Swanberg

Joe Swanberg, who contributed to the new found-footage horror anthology "V/H/S." It's the first time Swanberg, who normally makes eloquently understated dramas including "Alexander the Last" (2009) and "LOL" (2006), has tried to frighten viewers.

"Coming from the world of drama," he says, "the visceral crowd response has been a real pleasure."

"V/H/S," arriving in theaters Friday, is an anthology of found-footage short films by some of the most imaginative young directors working in the horror genre, including Ti West, Adam Wingard and David Bruckner. Those three Skype gets scary in co-director Joe Swanberg's segment of "V/H/S," a horror anthology featuring found-footage short films.

"Coming from the world of drama, the visceral crowd response has been a real pleasure."

— JOE SWANBERG, "V/H/S" CO-DIRECTOR, ON THE JOYS OF SCARING AUDIENCES

About the Movie

In "V/H/S," petty criminals who like to film their bad deeds are hired to break into a remote house and steal a VHS tape. What they discover is a video library full of possibly supernatural snuff films. It is, in other words, a found-footage film about found-footage films.

have made some of the best and most original horror films of the past five years, including "The House of the Devil," "A Horrible Way to Die" and "The Signal," respectively.

Of the nine co-directors of "V/H/S," Swanberg is the odd man out. "My past body of work," he admits, "does not make me an ideal candidate to direct one of these." Yet his segment of the film,

"The Sick Thing That Happened to Emily When She Was Younger" — which is told entirely through Skype — is one of the movie's most terrifying.

Swanberg is excited to be in such good company. "V/H/S" he says, may be "really grisly and in a lot of ways very immature, and it has a lot of the blood and nudity of the '80s horror aesthetic, but it's a really smart movie," he says. "These directors are some of the coolest, smartest people making horror movies today. These guys are going to revolutionize the genre."

Movies' Movies

In "V/H/S," opening Friday, bad guys film themselves finding movies of other bad guys. At least they get to see those movies in their entirety, which we never got to do with these films-within-films. K.P.K.

1 "Angels With Filthy Souls"

A parody of a noir-gangster flick, this is the film that Kevin in "Home Alone" uses to get out of answering the door for the pizza man. It also brought the phrase "Keep the change, you filthy animal" to playgrounds everywhere.

2 "Simple Jack"

You want an Oscar? Play someone with a disability. That's why Ben Stiller's character in "Tropic Thunder" starred in this movie about a character who's essentially Forrest Gump's slower (in every sense) younger brother.

3 "The Dueling Cavalier"

The film that might destroy silent film star Lina Lamont's (Jean Hagen) career in "Singin' in the Rain" involves — gasp — sound and singing. Since she sounds like Bobcat Goldthwait gargling gravel, a plan is hatched, people fall in love, and Gene Kelly frolics in a storm.

4 "Chubby Rain"

In "Bowfinger," a producer (played by Steve Martin) shoots a sci-fi action movie featuring a big star (Eddie Murphy) who doesn't even know he's on film. All of a sudden "Plan 9 From Outer Space" looks good.

5 "Asses of Fire"

The Canadian "Terrance and Philip" movie within "South Park: Bigger, Longer & Uncut" goes beyond absurd, eventually inspiring the U.S. to invade Canada. That'll teach 'em.

A tie-dyed Team Lithuania hits the 1992 Olympics with a dream of its own.

Games People Play

The Grateful Dead, an American coach and a basketball team from a newly free country walk into the 1992 Olympics. That's the basic story of the new doc "The Other Dream Team," out Friday. But there's more to it: Lithuania, occupied by the Soviet Union for close to 50 years, was a basketball-obsessed nation whose best players had to compete under the Soviet flag. The country won independence in time to be recognized for the Barcelona Games but had little money — until the Dead stepped in and cut a check. The film starts as a history lesson, but the last 20 minutes pack an emotional wallop that starts at the Procession of Athletes and doesn't let up until the credits roll. It's an ending you'll remember the next time someone dismisses sports as "just a game." ▶ Landmark E Street Cinema, 555 11th St. NW; opens Fri., $8-$11; 202-452-7672, Landmarktheatres.com. # Stock in Apple(s)

Apple season arrived early this year, delighting Gala groupies, Pink Lady lovers and Golden Delicious devotees alike. ## Apple Charlotte

Art and Soul is serving an apple-themed treat with a French accent. The "charlotte" originated as a way to use up old bread, with slices arranged around a fruit filling and then baked. But the restaurant's apple charlotte ($8), which features chopped and cooked Gala apples and is served on a pool of creme anglaise, tastes anything but humble. That's thanks to chef Wes Morton's use of cinnamon raisin bread rather than the traditional white, and the butter and sugar that are brushed on each slice before baking. "It gets really caramel-y and buttery, crispy and sweet," Morton says. Indeed, the flavors pull together to create a surprisingly elegant end to a meal. • Art and Soul, 415 New Jersey Ave. NW; 202-393-7777, Artandsoul.com.

There's nothing quite like a freshly plucked apple from a pick-your-own farm. Here are a few to visit:

Apple-Smoked Pork Belly

Lincoln Restaurant is going all-out with apples this fall, offering several dishes that celebrate the fruit. The most inventive might be the apple-smoked pork belly ($12), an appetizer whose meat is marinated in pureed apples and then smoked using applewood and apples in the fire. The dish is served with a bourbon vanilla apple sauce and an apple-jalapeno slaw that makes each bite sweet, smoky, salty and spicy, all at once. Lincoln is also serving an apple and endive salad, three desserts starring apples and a spiked apple punch. • Lincoln Restaurant, 1110 Vermont Ave. NW; 202-386-9200, Lincolnrrestaurant-dc.com.

Apple Dumpling

Bar Pilar gives a warm, comforting nod to apple season with chef Justin Bittner's Pennsylvania Dutch apple dumpling ($7). The dessert tastes immediately soothing, and that's no accident. The original recipe comes straight from Bittner's mom, who makes it regularly using apples from the family's Pennsylvania farm. He's tweaked the recipe considerably, but the basic gist is the same: a peeled and cored apple (Honeycrisp, in this case) wholly clad in pastry that's baked and served with warm maple caramel sauce and vanilla ice cream.

— EMILY SPRISLER, CHEF AT BRITISH GASTROPUB MAYFAIR & PINE

Sausage and Apple Pie

Mayfair & Pine is offering a twist on the old-fashioned Cornish pasty. The British gastropub has added to its bar menu a homemade sausage and apple pie ($6) that works as a hearty snack or a light supper. Italian pork sausage, sharp cheddar and Braeburn and Ginger Gold apples are sealed in a flaky pastry. "Using apples in a savory dish is a go-to way of doing something completely different," says chef Emily Sprissler. "Apples are a game-changer."

That's true in this case; the apples add a note of sweetness to an otherwise tangy and robust dish.

Mitsitam

KATIE ABERBACH/EXPRESS

Layer of Doubt

It is a verifiable fact that, when presented with any part of a fish that still contains skin and is not cleverly concealed inside sushi, nine out of 10 individuals will be kind of grossed out.

I am among that overwhelming majority. And yet here I am, about to tell you what's so great about eating fish skin.

I'm talking specifically about the salmon skin garnish on the salmon belly appetizer at Mitsitam Native Foods Cafe ($16; National Museum of the American Indian, 4th Street and Independence Avenue SW; Mitsitamcafe.com). Part of the restaurant's new fall menu, the dish also includes a chunk of smoky, cedar paper-wrapped salmon belly (a tender, fatty fillet), salmon roe and squash bread pudding.

The garnish is simply thin slices of dried salmon skin (made by cooking the skin on an oven's heated flat-top for a few minutes, according to chef Richard Hetzler).

Despite being kind of grossed out by the skin's telltale silver sheen and fearing a chewy texture and overly salty flavor, I genuinely enjoyed the skin. It hardly tasted salty and was only subtly fishy. What's more, its crispy texture reminded me of an old familiar friend: the potato chip.

It is not a verifiable fact, but I'd wager that, when presented with dried salmon skin, nine out of 10 individuals will be kind of grossed out — and then completely change their minds.

Smoked ribs are served with fries and cole slaw at Epic Smokehouse, a new upscale barbecue restaurant near Pentagon City.

The Big Pig-Out

Epic Smokehouse is a handsome setting for sweet barbecue

Wayne Halleran and Joon Yang appear to be channeling their former employer, the Palm Restaurant in Tysons Corner, with their new Epic Smokehouse. Based in the Millennium at Metropolitan Park near Pentagon City, the 86-seat dining room overlooking a tidy expanse of grass raises the design bar for barbecue joints.

The booths are epic and swathed in dark leather. Sleek copper lights illuminate the tables. The slender backdrop for smoked food feels bigger than it is, thanks to tilted mirrors near the ceiling that capture the action below, like a film strip.

First
Bite

Much of the menu originates in a wood-stoked Southern Pride Smoker, including the beef for the chili and the pork ribs that go from sweet to sassy with their seasoning of brown sugar, dried chipotle and Old Bay spice. The latter dish, apportioned as if for Fred Flinstone, comes with golden hand-cut fries and coleslaw that could use more binder. Shored up with leek-sweetened smashed potatoes, Epic's plump chicken benefits from brining before it is roasted.

Side-step the dry, dull "pig rolls" made with wonton wrappers. And avoid the temptation to try the bacon-topped cupcakes. Halleran, who is the kitchen head as well as a co-owner here, says the dessert sells "like hot cakes." I'll take the hot cakes over the cloying alternative.

The chow begs for beer or wine, neither of which was poured during my early visit. Once they get approval to serve the strong stuff, the restaurateurs hope their 60-bottle wine program also will distance Epic from the barbecue-joint competition.

The place already stands apart for a handy fixture to the side of the upscale dining room: a big sink for washing away evidence of a pigout.

Documenting Detroit

CAMILO JOSÉ VERGARA/NATIONAL BUILDING MUSEUM

PHOTOGRAPHER CAMILO JOSÉ VERGARA has spent the past 25 years documenting Detroit as it grapples with an economic downturn that's led to its losing 60 percent of its population since the 1950s. The result of his work, "Detroit Is No Dry Bones," is now on display at the National Building Museum. The shot above is "East Palmer From Chene, Detroit, 1995."

National Air and Space Museum: "Fly Marines! The Centennial of Marine Corps Aviation: 1912-2012," this exhibition of paintings and photographs, on loan from the National Museum of the Marine Corps, honors the branch's legacy as a supplier of air support for U.S. troops over a 100-year period, from World War I through Afghanistan and Iraq. Ongoing exhibits: Explore the evolution of flight, with displays, hands-on exhibitions and historic aircraft and spacecraft, from the Wright brothers plane to Charles Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis to the Apollo 11 command module Columbia. The museum also has a planetarium and IMAX theater, which for a fee shows educational films on flight and outer space, 6th Street and Independence Avenue SW; 202-633-1000, Nasm.si.edu.

National Building Museum: "Detroit Disassembled: Photographs by Andrew Moore," the 30 monumentally scaled photographs reveal the tragic beauty of Detroit's ruins. "Detroit Is No Dry Bones: Photographs by Camilo Jose Vergara," the sociologist documented the city's decline for more than 25 years. His photographs illustrate the tension between Detroit's industrial ruins and its surviving communities as the city has continued to shrink and reinvent itself. "House & Home," an ongoing exhibition that explores what it means to live at home. "Investigating Where We Live," produced by area teenagers in conjunction with museum staff, this exhibition features photographs and writings documenting Washington's Anacostia neighborhood. "Kevin Roche: Architecture as Environment," an exhibition of works by the Irish American glass architect, indefinitely. Ongoing exhibits: Learn about the history of buildings and their environmental impact, 401 F St. NW; 202-272-2448, Nbm.org.

LAST CHANCE National Gallery of Art, East Building: "Deacon Peckham's 'Hobby Horse,'" eight paintings of children by the noted American portrait artist, including the famed depiction of two children and a toy horse, through Mon. "In the Tower: Barnett Newman," the next installment of the In the Tower series, which spotlights artists working from the midcentury to present day, includes the abstract expressionist's linear paintings and drawings from the 1940s, "Shock of the News," more than 60 artists will be represented in this exhibition, which looks at how visual artists began at the turn of the 20th century to think about the newspaper more broadly, 4th Street and Constitution Avenue NW; 202-737-4215, Nga.gov.

National Gallery of Art, West Building: "Civic Pride: Dutch Group Portraits From Amsterdam," rare depictions of meetings inside the Kloveniersdoelen, the gathering place of one of Amsterdam's three militia companies, by Govert Flinck and Bartholomeus van der Helst are displayed, "Elegance and Refinement: The Still-Life Paintings of Willem van Aelst," few artists were more skilled than Willem van Aelst (1627-1683) at depicting luscious fruits, luxurious fabrics and spoils of the hunt. ## Broadcast Muse

First Ladies of TV

President Obama says his favorite TV show is "Homeland," which must mean he admires spy Carrie Mathison, played by Claire Danes, above.

Republican presidential nominee Mitt Romney said last month: "I'm kind of a Snooki fan. ... Just her spark-plug personality is kind of fun."

By Marc Silver

"Homeland's" new season began Sunday (Showtime, 10 p.m.). The final season of Snooki's "Jersey Shore" starts tonight (MTV, 10 p.m.). Let's compare the two babes: ► New, duller lives: The CIA ousted Carrie after her bipolar breakdown; she's moved in with her sister and dad and is teaching English to foreigners. Champion carouser Snooki is pregnant and engaged.

► Things they miss: Carrie craves spy-biz thrills. Snooki wishes she could smoke cigarettes and do shots with her friends.

► Bossy streaks: Carrie to CIA contact: "If you are going to ask me to go to Beirut, just ask me already." Snooki to fiancé: "Stop and get me flowers."

► Memorable sound bites: Carrie: "I have never been so sure and so wrong." Snooki: "Pregnant bitch is here."

Verdict: They actually have a lot in common, but Snooki is just more fun!

Outside of the Bedroom

Emerging R&B star Miguel wants to help diversify the genre

Music

R&B singer Miguel doesn't want to be called "smooth," and he's tired of hearing his music described as "sexy." In fact, he's pretty much sick of all the standard terms that have been used to describe male R&B singers over the past 30 years.

"With any R&B artist it's like, 'Oh he's a sexy crooner,'" says the 25-year-old L.A. native. "It's always the same words used, like 'ladiieees,' or 'bedroom.' My life exists 95 percent outside of the bedroom. That's the real."

Kaleidoscope Dream
Miguel

And that reality is reflected on Miguel's superb new album, "Kaleidoscope Dream." His sophomore effort is an ideal vehicle for luring commercial R&B listeners into riskier territory and a clear attempt by Miguel to find a new home for his music that's not just between the sheets.

"This album sounds more like my lifestyle," Miguel says. "The first album sounds like what my love life sounds like, but this is a bit more rounded, I think. The first album wasn't like a misrepresentation, it just was very one-sided."

"All I Want Is You" was that critically acclaimed and com-

Miguel says he wants to bring R&B back to a "time when there was room for individuality."

mercially successful 2010 debut that announced Miguel — born Miguel Jontel Pimentel — as one of R&B's more inventive and adventurous voices. He's also amassed an impressive list of songwriting credits, writing romantic lyrics for everyone from Usher to Mary J. Blige, and has become one of hip-hop's go-to feature artists whenever a rapper wants a softer edge. (Miguel guests on "Lotus Flower Bomb," the biggest chart hit for D.C. rapper Wale.)

It's easy to lose count of how many singers declare to be moving in a more eclectic direction with each project, while also claiming that their music goes beyond traditional genre boundaries. Miguel is different, though. He is a proud R&B artist who is not trying to ditch the genre, but to diversify it.

"There was time when there was room for individuality in R&B, and people had their own thing," he says. "While James Brown was creating funk ... you had artists that were still doing things that were different, but successful at the same time. ... 'Papa Was a Rollin' Stone,' that's not about love."

While the not-love songs on "Kaleidoscope Dream" are great, freaky moments still remain. "[Expletive] Is Mine" is the raunchiest track of the lot, but with just Miguel's sweet voice and a guitar line carrying the song, it's more Prince than porno.

"Don't get me wrong — ratchet hours exist in my life, but there's a time and a place," he says. "I'm just saying, like, let's still be creative."

SARAH GODFREY (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Backstory

Following His Own Path to R&B Success

Born to a Mexican father and an African-American mother, Miguel started singing and writing songs in elementary school. He broke into the business by writing love songs for others, in part because he had a tough time fitting into the narrow "urban" box into which much of black music is shoved. "I just want to get back to reminding people that this is a genre — it's not a stereotype," he says. "I wanna engage sensibilities. I'm not trying to engage ethnicities or demographics created by a business." (TWP)

600K The number of copies Mumford & Son's second album, "Babel," sold in its first week — the biggest debut of any album this year, according to Nielsen SoundScan. Of those sales, 420,000 were digital downloads. Justin Bieber's "Believe" was the year's prior best-selling debut, with 374,000 copies sold. (EXPRESS)

Ready to 'Rumble'

Stewart and O'Reilly talk trash ahead of Saturday's debate

Politics

One is from Fox News, the other Comedy Central. They might as well be the Capulets and the Montagues.

Despite their opposing sides on the political spectrum, something almost like — gasp! — friendship has evolved between Bill O'Reilly and Jon Stewart. The two have frequently appeared on each other's shows, exhibiting actual respect for the other's views. (Proof: O'Reilly will appear as a guest on Thursday's "The Daily Show.")

On Saturday, Stewart and O'Reilly will square off in a sold-out mock debate at George Washington University's Lisner Auditorium, to be streamed online at Therumble2012.com for $4.95, with half the proceeds going to charity. As the two prepare for the clash in their respective corners — the event has been dubbed "The Rumble in the Air-Conditioned Auditorium" — Stewart and O'Reilly took a moment to reflect on their special relationship.

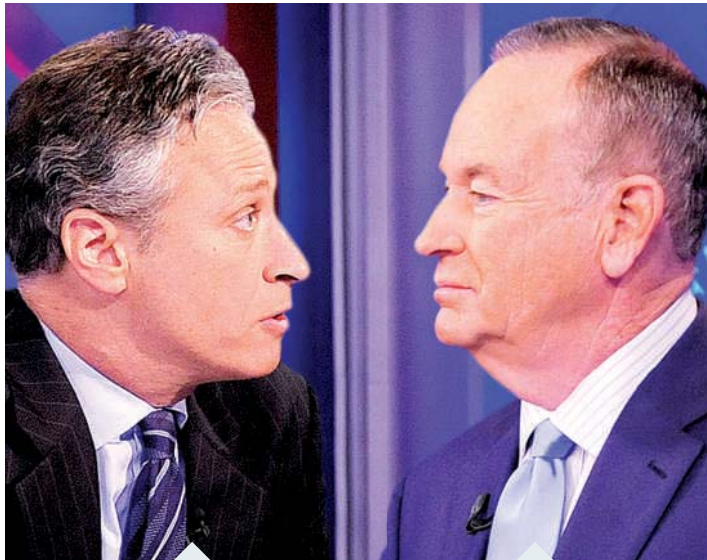

"I think he idolizes me secretly and that's what it's all about," O'Reilly says.

Stewart, in turn, compares them to "The Princess and the Pea."

"And I'm going to go with me as the pea," he says.

But both, in separate phone interviews, also quickly follow those descriptions with praise. O'Reilly calls the "Daily Show" host "a good guy" and "very talented."

When it was suggested that

"I think he comes by his views honestly. I can't say I agree with him."

"I think he idolizes me secretly and that's what it's all about."

their relationship is one based on both mutual respect and mutual disgust, Stewart laughs but says: "I enjoy talking to the guy. I find him very entertaining. He's got a good sense of humor. He's smart. I think he comes by his views honestly. I can't say I agree with him."

"He's like comfort food for me," Stewart says. "I feel like I grew up around these guys. He's my shepherd's pie."

Their 90-minute debate, which follows Wednesday's showdown between President Barack Obama and Republican nominee Mitt Romney, will be conducted like a presidential debate (albeit with less strict time restraints) and moderated by CNN's E.D. Hill.

The "O'Reilly Factor" host says their tete-a-tete might actually be more substantial than the "over-rehearsed" presidential debates. Their event, O'Reilly says, will cover about five issues, such as the economy, terrorism and "why Stewart's a communist."

"We're actually going to talk honestly here," he says. "With us, we'll just let it fly: This is the way I feel, this is how I see it. There's none of that censoring or calculating. That's one of the reasons I wanted to do it."

It was O'Reilly who approached Stewart with the idea.

"I didn't have much of a choice," Stewart says. "First of all, how'd the guy get my number? Second of all, he just calls up and says: 'Stewart. O'Reilly. Debate.'" JAKE COYLE (AP)

Friends of Ellen: Jimmy Kimmel, Kristin Chenoweth, Steve Harvey and Lily Tomlin have signed on to honor Ellen DeGeneres with tribute performances as she wins the nation's top humor prize. ## A 'Quiet' Storm

Flying Lotus melds hip-hop, electronica and jazz on a new CD

Album Review

For the past half decade, Los Angeles-based producer Flying Lotus (real name: Steven Ellison) has been at the forefront of a mini-movement fusing instrumental hip-hop, electronica and cosmic jazz. Ellison became blog-beloved with his last album, 2010's "Cosmogramma," and while he'll never be Skrillex, "Until the Quiet Comes" — with its buzzed-about Thom Yorke collaboration — represents his best chance to connect with mainstream listeners.

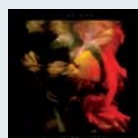

As DJ/producer Flying Lotus, Steven Ellison makes music that sounds like it's from another planet.

nect with mainstream listeners.

Ellison's music is cool and cerebral, controlled even when it seems like it's not. The album is a 3 a.m. comedown that is both intimate and spacious, a slippery and spotless set of moody, jazz-heavy pieces.

Until the Quiet Comes Flying Lotus

It's also the most accessible Flying Lotus release yet, thanks to guest spots from Erykah Badu and Yorke. The Radiohead singer appears on the slight "Electric Candyman," which sounds as if it was taken apart with a wrench and put together with all its parts in the wrong places. ALLISON STEWART

Sweden Honors ABBA

'Dancing Queen' band to anchor country's music hall of fame

Museums

A traveling ABBA exhibit is getting a permanent home in a new museum dedicated mostly to the Swedish quartet that has sold nearly 400 million records since the 1970s.

Former band member Bjoern Ulvaeus says "ABBA the Museum" will be part of a Swedish music hall of fame, set to open in Stockholm next spring. The museum will feature some of the band's glitzy stage costumes and instruments.

Bjoern Ulvaeus says ABBA has no plans to reunite.

Ulvaeus hopes all the other former ABBA members — Benny Andersson, Agnetha Faltskog and Anni-Frid Lyngstad — will attend the opening, but he ruled out any chance of a stage comeback.

"It is a strength for ABBA that you remember those young, ambitious, energetic people during the '70s," Ulvaeus says, "rather than some feeble old folks." (AP)

'30 ROCK,' 'JERSEY SHORE'

Departing Dearly

Two series that have — for better or worse — had a lasting impact on pop culture begin their farewell seasons tonight. First, on “30 Rock” (8 p.m., NBC), Liz (Tina Fey, left) is displeased with the shockingly poor quality of the fall programming Jack has selected, while Kenneth and Hazel invite Tracy to an awkward dinner party. Then, on “Jersey Shore” (10 p.m., MTV), a pregnant Snooki, right, moves back into the Seaside shore house. (EXPRESS)

Memory Pill Does for the Brain What Prescription Glasses Do for the Eyes, Claims US Surgeon General Candidate

Remarkable changes observed, helps restore up to 15 years of lost memory power in as little as 30 days!

SPOKANE, WASHINGTON – Help is on the way for those who routinely lose their car keys, forget to call people back, or misplace their TV remote control.

Just like a good pair of glasses can make blurry vision, sharp and crystal-clear, there's a new, doctor-recommended memory pill that can do the same thing for your brain, sharpening your memory and mental powers, and making that slow-thinking, sluggish brain as sharp as a tack.

In controlled research studies, the prescription-free formula, known as Procera AVH® has been shown to increase memory, mood, and mental clarity, but it does much more than that.

Time Travel for Your Brain?

If you have ever dreamed of traveling back in time, this drug-free compound may be the next best thing.

UCLA Geffen School of Medicine Assistant Clinical Professor and Internist, Robert Heller, MD uses and recommends a drug-free method to increase memory, mental focus and concentration.

During research trials at the prestigious Brain Sciences Institute, clinical researchers witnessed a remarkable transformation in study participants' brains.

Over a period of a few weeks, scientists observed the formula "biochemically coaxing" aging brains to function more youthfully, helping restore the speed, memory abilities and mental powers enjoyed as far back as 15 birthdays ago.

Younger Brain in 30 Days?

If the results of this randomized, double-blind, placebo controlled study, published in JANA, a leading scientific journal, are to be believed, it is entirely possible that you can get your new, younger-functioning brain in as little as 30 days.

This is old news for Robert Heller, MD, who uses and recommends the formula

"It's not a drug," says Dr. Heller, "it's a nutritional supplement that can help a foggy, sluggish brain become a sharper, quicker, and healthier brain."

Wake Up Call for Tired Brains

For years, Dr. Heller looked for an effective solution to patients' complaints about mind and memory.

"I searched for a remedy or treatment that could help my patients, even friends and family, regain the memory and mental sharpness we all seem to lose with age. I am quite happy to now recommend Procera AVH as it gives the brain much needed support against free radicals, inflammation and improve the decline in neurotransmitters, and blood flow and oxygen."

"It's like reading an eye chart with the right pair of glasses instead of an old pair of lenses. Everything comes into focus, your brain is more crisp, more focused, clearer, and sharper."

Dr. Con Stough at the Brain Sciences Institute concurs, "It's a fairly unique, fast-acting process that pumps the brain full of more energy, improves blood circulation to the brain and increases the key neurotransmitters that are responsible for cognitive functioning."

Elizabeth K. of Rochester, New York experienced a night-and-day difference in her mind and memory.

A randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study on what may be the world's first truly effective memory pill was conducted at this university research facility.

At the age of 54, her memory was declining at an "alarming rate."

"I was about to consult a neurologist when I read about Procera AVH." Elizabeth decided to give it a try.

"It took about a month for the memory benefit to kick in. Six months later, even my husband was impressed with my improved memory. And I am very happy with my renewed mental clarity and focus!"

A 'Bonus' Effect?

Elizabeth was pleasantly surprised with one of the formula's 'bonus effects.'

"Within a week I felt a wonderful change in my mood. It was such an unexpected bonus," smiles Elizabeth.

Pharmacist Gene Steiner, Pharm.D, was relocating to another state and was apprehensive about taking the state board of pharmacy jurisprudence examination, a daunting examination that tests a candidate's mastery of pharmacy law.

Dr. Steiner took Procera AVH daily for two weeks prior to the test, and passed with flying colors. "The recall I experienced was near fantastic," says Steiner.

Curiosity piqued, Dr. Steiner did his own research to learn more about the formula

He read about a US cognitive researcher who had taken a new approach to treating memory loss, addressing the "energy crisis" that occurs naturally in human brains around the age of 40-50.

Author, researcher, pre-eminent brain expert, and lead formulator for Procera AVH, Joshua Reynolds, explains, "One-third of your brainpower may be lost by the age of 40, and 50 percent may be lost by the age of 50!"

Half-Blind... and Can't See It

"If you were to lose half your vision, essentially go half-blind, you would surely notice it," says Reynolds.

Days before seeing a neurologist for her "alarming rate" of memory loss, 54-year-old Elizabeth K., Rochester, New York, discovered a natural memory pill that changed her life.

Mark S. in Alego, Texas, was worried about being at his best during sales calls.

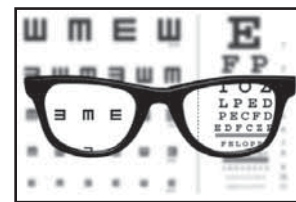

"I really needed something to help with mental clarity, focus and memory. I have to be at my best when I meet with clients."

Shortly after he started taking Procera AVH, Mark was amazed at how sharp and mentally focused he was during his appointments.

"It was definitely a noticeable difference. I was very pleased with Procera AVH and happy to know it will help me stay at my best."

Neural Pathways, Energized!

Three clinically validated brain energy nutrients in Reynolds' formula have been shown to "light up aging brains like a Christmas tree."

Age-related vision loss is easily corrected with glasses. A novel drug-free compound has been found to help restore age-related memory loss and poor mental focus in as little as 30 days.

Procera revitalizes tired sluggish brains cells with a fresh supply of oxygen and key vital nutrients. Plus, it helps restore depleted neurotransmitters, which increase and enhance alertness, concentration, and memory.

"We included acetyl-L-carnitine, a natural modified amino acid with a proven record of memory enhancement," says Reynolds.

"It's the same brain nutrient found in cold-water fish, but you'd have to eat over 20 servings of fish to get what's in one daily dose of Procera AVH."

The formula also contains vinpocetine, a substance that helps deliver increased oxygen and glucose to your brain.

"Vinpocetine helps increase circulation in the brain, so your brain feels more alive, like a breath of fresh air," says Reynolds.

The third ingredient is huperzine, a potent plant chemical shown to improve learning and memory at all ages.

"Students can do better in school when they take it," adds Reynolds. "And the US government has been studying huperzine's neuroprotective powers against the brain-damaging effects of pesticides in food."

Selwyn Howell credits Reynolds' memory pill with bolstering his confidence.

"It helped me speak out more than I used to. I am growing more confident every day."

Carey S. reports, "I feel so much more focused and with the new energy I'm now ready to tackle the things I've been putting off for years!"

NIH researchers seek depressed persons ages 18-55 to enroll in a research study evaluating the changes in brain chemistry that may cause depression. You may qualify if you are currently depressed. A psychiatrist from our research team will determine your eligibility based on your symptoms and history.

Research participation includes:

- 2 outpatient visits of six hours each, and
- 10-15 outpatient visits of one hour each, over 2-3 months
- treatment with one of 3 standard antidepressants
- two brain scans (PET)

Research is conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, MD. There is no cost to participate and compensation is provided. Travel may be reimbursed. After study completion participants receive short-term follow-up care while transitioning back to their own provider, or are referred to a mental health professional.

Horoscope

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Do what you think is best today, and trust that others will understand both your methods and your motives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may be feeling uncertain about what lies ahead — particularly over the next few days. It may be time for some soul-searching.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You'll feel pressured to move in a certain direction today, despite your sense that it is not the way you were meant to go.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Some things may be in a hopeless muddle today, but you'll have a clear sense of where you will be going — as soon as you can get moving!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You will be asking many questions today — and those that are the simplest may take the longest to answer.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Others may not agree with your premise, but they cannot argue with the way you are going after results. Some critics will want to help you!

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your ambitions are clear, but you may not fully understand what it will mean to you when they begin to be fulfilled. A prophecy is made.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Timing is keen, but you may not be aware of what someone is doing just over your shoulder. Competition is likely to heat up.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You are feeling as though you are not in sync today, but you are settling into a fine rhythm. Others must adjust around you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) With a little help from a friend you can break through certain barriers and enjoy greater personal freedom at this time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may not know why something is happening, but you surely know what it means to you — both immediately and in the long run.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Give freely at this time, and you'll be rewarded in ways both rich and unexpected. Internal rhythms are changing in subtle ways.
